GRIM TASK—Harold Stiglet, left, Hancock County Medical Examiner investigator, and Kenny Fayard Jr., Hancock County sheriff's arson squad member view the remains believed to be of Dedeaux Community resident Weston Joseph Ladner early Friday morning. The body was located between the car and house which were both destroyed by a fire of undetermined origin according to officials. A passerby saw the fire and notified authorities.

Firefighters from Kiln, Diamondhead and Leetown fire departments reported the home was destroyed when they arrived at the scene. Stiglet said he was told by family members that Ladner had cerebral palsy and wore braces on his leg. The remains were sent to New Orleans for an autopsy. Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson on Saturday stated the case is still under investigation. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

Waveland dedicates new police station

BY DENA BISNETTE

Waveland's new police station on US-90 next to Watertown Plaza has been officially dedicated.

At a dedication ceremony Saturday, Waveland Mayor John Longo presented plaques to Police Chief Donald Dorn and Investigator Robert Tartavouille, as well as John Auderer and Larry Smith.

Waveland American Legion Post 77 members provided a flag raising ceremony.

Longo also publicly thanked everyone involved with the preparation of the new station.

"I'm just delighted that we have this beautiful new station," Longo said prior to the dedication.

He said the 5,000 square foot facility actually cost the city about $106,000 in cash but the finished project is actually worth more than $300,000.

Longo explained that the city purchased a metal building and part of the site, with the remaining property donated by Auderer.

The inside of the building was designed by Tartavouille with assistance from consultant Ray Eaton, Dorn said. Dorn and Tartavouille also provided much of the interior work and finishing.

Off-duty policemen and police auxiliary members provided interior work such as installation of paneling and flooring. Paving for the parking area was provided by City Superintendent Herman Yarbrough and street department crews.

Smith donated the electrical work, Longo said.

The new facility features offices for Dorn, investigators and attorney; a dispatcher's center; a policeman's lounge; a city courtroom; a photographic darkroom; two holding cells; and storage space.

"We have all the finest electronic and telephonic communications systems," said Longo, explaining that Waveland's 24-hour dispatching service serves not only the police department but the Waveland Fire Department, 911 emergency service, Mobile Medic Ambulance Service and the city dog warden.

Dorn said he is hoping that the new station will improve the department's operations.

"By moving from Coleman Avenue to US-90, we're just moving the building," he said. "We are not actually moving our services."

"People will still be receiving the same service throughout the city and may even get better service."

He said that having the station on high ground will also reduce the problems the department had with hurricanes while housed in the Coleman Avenue station behind city hall.

"Every time there was a hurricane, we had to load everything on a truck and move it to Fire Station No. 2 on Gulfside Drive. We moved three times last year and sometimes we didn't even get everything off the truck before we had to move again."

"That's one of the reasons we made this place so big. It becomes our home during a hurricane."

Dorn also said he wished to thank local merchants who assisted the department by donating appliances and other items for the lounge.

"These things weren't necessary so we couldn't buy them, but having them will make it much nicer."

Dorn and Longo said they also hope the new station will help facilitate growth in the department.

Dorn has not added personnel yet, but said he now has some place to put new employees when he gets them.

The chief said the department had completely outgrown the Coleman Avenue station, which will be cleaned up and used as a branch office for both the fire and police departments.

The police force now totals about 15 members including investigators, administrative personnel and dispatcher but not including its part-time auxiliary.

County planners to present proposal for building code

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK

The Hancock County Planning Commission this week will present a proposed building code to the Board of Supervisors.

The commission decided Thursday to submit the code which includes minimal requirements set in the Revised Southern Standards Building Code.

The proposed code will apply only to residences, mobile homes and commercial buildings.

The commission emphasized the code would not regulate outbuildings including barns, garages, or storage buildings.

Hancock County voters would have the opportunity to vote on the building code in the November election.

The commission is also going to talk with the supervisors about holding several public hearings on the code in various locations in the county.

Also at the meeting Bay St. Louis Postmaster Tom Hill offered the services of the postal service to every extent possible in getting all streets and houses in the county numbered.

Hill read portions of a bill passed in a recent session of the state legislature which requires every street and house in the state to be identified by numbers.

The Postal Service is requested on a daily basis to provide physical addresses either to aid the sheriff's office or assist in the emergency location of relatives because they cannot

BAYOU LIBERTY—Gary Necaiss of Waveland stands on the banks of Bayou Liberty at Bonfua, La. between Slidell and Lacombe on the north shore of Lake Pont-chartrain where his Necaiss ancestors settled in the late Eighteenth Century.

Entertainer and song writer Gary E. Necaiss of Waveland reports the forebears of all the Necaisses of the Gulf Coast departed France on the ship L'Elephant on Aug. 10, 1720.

Necaiss, who is involved in establishing his family's genealogy, said that date has been documented in research conducted by Placide Donald Necaiss of Huntsville, Ala.

Gary Necaiss is hoping to stage an extensive family reunion in Hancock County before the end of this year in honor of Jean and Jacques Necaiss who were listed as passengers on the L'Elephant which is believed to have landed at Mobile, Ala.

Also working with Gary Necaiss on research to update the family tree are James Joseph "Jimmy" Necaiss of Mobile, Leroy Necaiss of Los Angeles, Calif., Mrs. Cleanath (Myrtle) Cuevas of Dedeaux Community and Mrs. Elvis E. (Lillie May) Necaiss of Rocky Hill.

Interested family members should write Gary Necaiss at 153 Beth Court, Waveland, MS 39576.

The Necaiss family now has been in America for ten generations, with members of the third generation almost grown before the Cajuns moved to Louisiana, according to P. D. Necaiss's report.

Following is the text of his report on the history of those early Frenchmen whose direct descendants comprise a large segment of the present-day Hancock County population:

THE NCAISS FAMILY IN AMERICA

By Placide Donald Necaiss
On August 10, 1720 a French ship, L'Elephant (The Elephant) left

France for a voyage directly to America.

The captain of this vessel was M. LeBlanc and it probably landed in Mobile. This ship carried passengers and supplies for the small colony of Frenchmen that had been established on the Gulf Coast following Iberville's visit in 1699.

The ship's passenger list included the following individuals as civilian workers:

Jean Nicaiss "The Cat," his wife Marie Angelique Fievet and two children; Jacques "The Cat," his wife Marie Barbe Boutantin and three children.

This is the only known record of men entering this country with the name of Nicaiss. The relationship of these men and their eventual fate is unknown. However, it is reasonable to assume that Jean Nicaiss "The Cat" or one of the five children was Jean Baptist.

Jean Baptist was almost certainly the direct ancestor of every Nicaiss now living on the Gulf Coast. He became a soldier in the French Army stationed in the Louisiana Territory and served until he was discharged on May 1, 1750.

He married Marie Catherine Miou of Mobile on May 11, 1745. Marie was the daughter of Andre Miou, patron for the king.

After the death of Andre in 1758, Jean became the new patron. He was called "Va de bon coeur" (good hearted or light hearted), the last of the French boat captains.

Jean owned a plantation called "Bellefontaine" six leagues below Mobile on Fowles River. This property was sold, probably after Jean's death, by his sons, Joseph and Martial in 1784.

Joseph and Martial left Mobile and moved into the area near the Bay of Saint Louis while they were in their late twenties. They were among the very earliest white settlers in this area.

Martial married Louisa Christian Ladner and his descendants settled in and around Bay St. Louis. This family lived in Bay St. Louis for several generations and gave their name to Necaiss Avenue. However, the only known surviving male descendants of Martial are believed to have died out completely in recent times.

Joseph and his family apparently moved to Bonfua, La. on the north shore of Lake Pontchartrain between Slidell and Lacombe. It is not clear how many years they lived there or if they ever returned.

There is currently no one by the name of Nicaiss living in that area. However, Joseph's oldest son John Baptist is known to have returned and married Genevieve Ladner of Bay St. Louis in 1810.

John and Genevieve had 13 children and most of their children continued to have large families. Every Nicaiss on the Gulf Coast is a direct descendant of John and Genevieve except the Charles Nicaiss line.

John and Genevieve may have lived in Bay St. Louis for a while. According to legend they sold some property on the Bay of St. Louis, known as the "Old Pirate House" to the famous pirate, Jean Lafitte.

It is claimed that he lived out the Brooke Schultz, 14, of 399 Ramoneda St., Bay St. Louis, was released from Hancock General Hospital on Friday. Hospital Community Relations Director Mary Perkins said. She had suffered multiple lacerations in the accident.

Michael Kergosien, 16, of 103 Ranch Road, Bay St. Louis, had suf-

Greg Johnston, 18, of Poplarville, was in good condition Saturday following surgery Wednesday for lacerations to the right leg, Perkins said.

She suffered a fractured jaw and multiple lacerations, a hospital spokesman said.

The accident occurred at about 10 p.m. Wednesday when a car driven by Harper collided at the intersection with a vehicle driven by White. Harper was crossing from Blue Meadow Road to Main Street, according to a report from the Bay St. Louis Police Department.

No citations were issued, but witnesses told police officers that White ran the red light on US-90.

Schultz was a passenger in Harper's car. Johnston and Kergosien were riding with White.

Fire district protesters call Thursday meeting

BY DENA BISNETTE

A special meeting has been called for any residents of BaySide Park, Bayou Phillips and Lakeshore who wish to protest the selection of a board of commissioners for the recently created BaySide Park Fire Protection District.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Department's station on Hinds Street.

The district is designed to enable the BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Department to obtain additional tax revenue for operations and equipment purchases.

Creation of the district was approved by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors July 30.

According to Martin DiSalvo of Bayou Phillips, the protesters object to the board of commissioners named in the final resolution approved by the supervisors and are proposing five different commissioners.

County eyeing fourth site for Bayou Cadet marina project

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors is looking at another possible site for a proposed marina facility at Bayou Cadet.

According to Jeff Taylor of South Mississippi Planning and Development District, who has been assisting the county in attempts to fund the project, the site may be the best of the four being considered.

The site is to the east of a water site being considered and consists of land artificially created by the dumping of spoils from a dredging operation, Taylor said.

There is a road running off Beach

Road that approaches the site from the northeast but does not presently extend all the way into it.

There is also a dirt road that extends into another site that has been previously considered. That road ends west of the site presently being considered but is cut off by water.

Taylor added that he has checked with wetlands mitigation permit authorities at Bureau of Marine Resources and has been told that mitigation on that site "is expected to be very minimal."

Taylor, who was authorized last week to contact the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers regarding an inspection of the site, told the board Monday that "Corps involvement will probably also be minimal."

Permits are usually needed from the Corps and Bureau of Marine Resources before most types of dredging or construction on a wetlands area can begin.

Mitigation requirements for projects such as the Bayou Cadet Marina generally include the creation of an artificial wetlands to replace any natural wetlands destroyed.

Typically, a mitigation site is adjacent to the construction or dredging site, but off-site mitigation is sometimes permitted, Taylor explained.

He said this particular site is an already impacted wetlands, but the county may have to knock down an existing berm to allow part of the site to return to a natural wetlands state.

Because a preliminary inspection of the area showed that much of the 51,000 cubic yards of material that will have to be moved is of good quality, part of the spoils from the project can be used to elevate an existing road and to construct a parking area.

The inspection also indicated that because a road already exists near the site, much of the material could be moved by county equipment and workers.

Taylor told the board that the major disadvantage of the 400-acre site is lack of room for commercial development.

The site is presently under private ownership but could be made available for county purchase if a definite decision is made to construct the marina on that property.

The present proposal for the Bayou Cadet project calls for a 100 boatslip marina with service facilities and a parking area.

Correction

Thursday's Sea Coast Echo listed an incorrect date for a meeting of BaySide Park, Bayou Phillips and Lakeshore residents who wish to protest the selection of a board of commissioners for the BaySide Park Fire Protection District.

The meeting is actually scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the BaySide Park Volunteer Fire Department's station on Hinds Street.

Jean Baptist was the first child of Joseph Necaise who moved from Mobile, Ala. with his brother Martial to the Bay St. Louis area. Joseph later moved to Bonfua, La. Joseph and Martial were sons of the Jean Baptist Necaise who is believed to be progenator of all the Necaises on the Gulf Coast today. ## Bay man injured in auto accident

William B. Zimmerman Jr., 32, of Route 4, Bay St. Louis received multiple injuries in a two-vehicle accident Thursday night on US-90 near Carroll Avenue.

Zimmerman was travelling on the highway when his vehicle collided with a car driven by Jules J. Napp, 70, Fort Allen, La., according to Bay Police Officer Frank Williams.

Napp, driving a silver Dodge, was entering the flow of traffic from the side of the highway.

Following the accident Zimmerman was taken by Mobile Medic to Hancock General Hospital where he was treated for trauma to head and neck and lacerations to the arms and knee.

Hospital spokesman Mary Perkins reported Friday, Zimmerman was in good condition.

Neither Napp nor his passengers, Barbara Arnold, 19, of 203 St. Charles St., Bay St. Louis and Tommy Peneguy, 24, of 901 Spa Nish Acres, Bay St. Louis were injured.

No charges have been filed and the accident is still under investigation, Williams said.

remainder of his life there in secret after getting in trouble again following his pardon during the War of 1812.

In any case, John and Genevieve settled a large section of land on Jourdan River around 1812. They officially received title from the American government in 1820. (The Americans had acquired this territory from Spain in 1810).

This land, known as the J.B. Necaise estate, included most of Kiln and is still indicated on some land maps.

Although John died around 1840, the distribution of the land was not made until 1912. This deed is filed under Case No. 1163 of the Chancery Court in the Hancock County Courthouse. This document ties together most of the present-day Necaise family lines.

The Charles Necaise line is still somewhat of a mystery. Joseph and Martial each had a son named Charles. However, there is no known record which ties either of these to the Charles Necaises named in the census records, or to Charles (Misma) who lived west of Kiln.

Misma served in the Civil War and is remembered by some of the older people still living around Kiln. It is said that he was an awesome figure with cold blue eyes. He generally rode a large black horse.

According to legend, he once got into a gun battle with some jayhawkers near his house. One of the gang was shot off his horse and the others ran away.

Misma is claimed to have captured the wounded bandit and hanged him from a tree just outside his yard. The truth of this story will probably never be known, but many of the local residents still avoid his old place after dark.

The Civil War undoubtedly had a great effect on all the families along the Gulf Coast. The census records seem to indicate many households which had split up with people living in the households of their near relatives after the war.

The only men, other than Misma, who have been identified as serving in the Civil War were Edmond, grandson of Martial; and Joseph, son of John and Genevieve. John and Genevieve probably also had other sons who served in the war but for whom no records have been found.

There is something of a controversy about whether "Necaise" or "Necaise" is the correct spelling. The original French spelling was "Necaise" and it still is spelled this way in France. The French pronunciation of this word is "Ne-caz."

The name was also spelled "Necaise" on the early records in this country. During Spanish and Mexican times, the pronunciation spelling because the people were illiterate and the local authorities chose a phonetic spelling based on their own language. The major change to an anglicized spelling of "Necaise" didn't occur until relatively recent times.

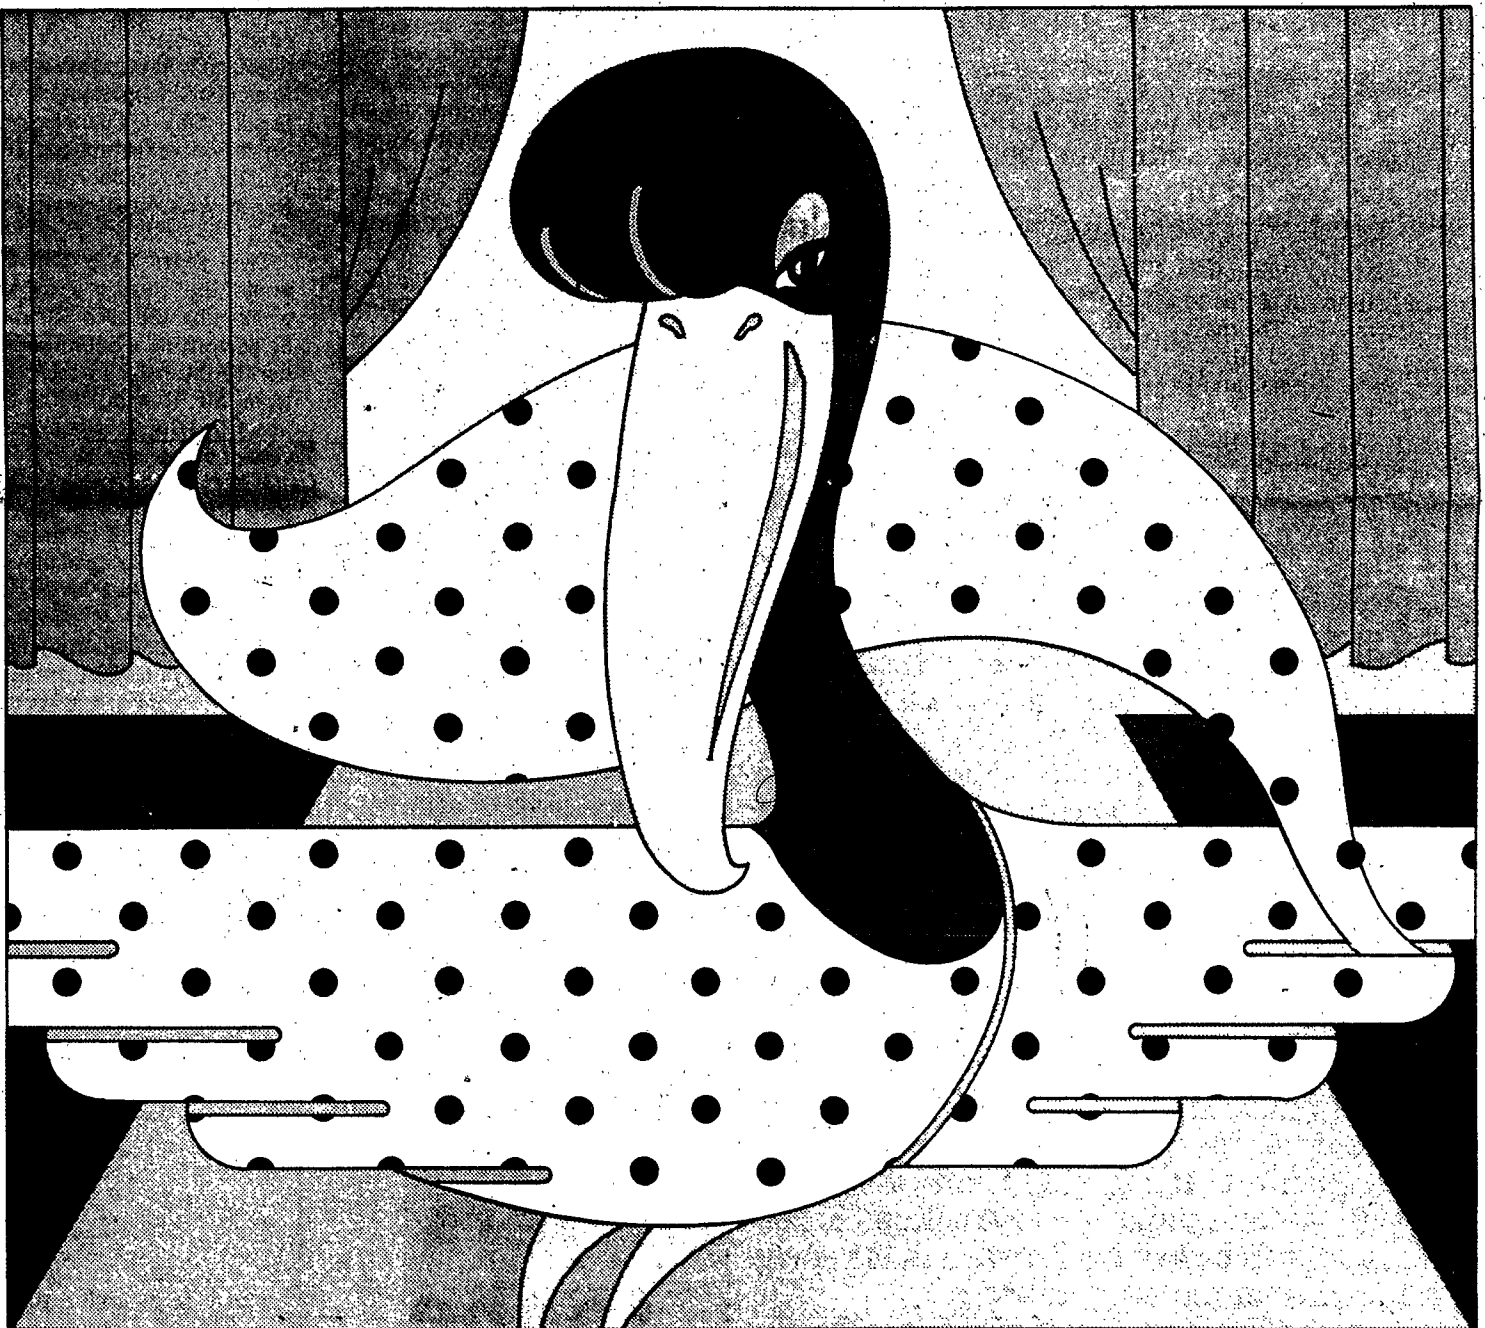

The Necaise family has now been in America for ten generations. The children of Jean Baptist were almost grown before the Arcadians moved into Louisiana. He probably had grandchildren when the Declaration of Independence was written. He certainly had great-grandchildren who served in the Civil War.

Many of the current generation have given up the timbering and cattle farming of their forefathers; however, most still remain near their ancestral homesite in Hancock and Harrison counties.

The Necaises and their close relatives continue to form a large percentage of the population in this area. The French language is dying out with the current generation, but the French customs and the "Va de bon coeur" spirit are still evident and may always be part of the culture along the Gulf Coast.

Saturday was a big day for the City of Waveland's Police Department as they moved to their new headquarters.

The building had been under construction for some time because the majority of the construction work was done by off-duty patrolmen and volunteers.

The building ended up costing the city probably one-third of what it would have cost if it had been constructed by a contractor.

The people of Waveland pull together when it comes to doing things which are beneficial to the community.

On Friday, I was talking with a Waveland resident who was telling me about the big difference of living in that community.

He has previously lived in many cities including Bay St. Louis for about 20 years, yet he said Waveland's lifestyle is like no place else.

I know what this Waveland resident was talking about, since I had previously resided there myself for 29 years.

The spirit of cooperation is something maybe other communities should maybe try to copy.

We know the police officers and officials, as well as residents of Waveland, are very proud of the city's new police station on US-90 near Waveland Avenue.

We have been told, in case you missed the grand opening on Saturday and would like to see the new facility, that if you stop by someone will be happy to give you a tour.

The City of Waveland continues to grow.

The bells for school days will be ringing very soon for all students residing in the Bay-Waveland and Hancock County areas.

Parents are busy getting things lined up for the coming school year and yet, it seems as if it were just yesterday school was getting out.

Schools have been in the 'limelight' of local news coverage due mainly to the start of kindergarten this school year.

We are hoping all space problems will be solved for the opening of school and every student will have a very good learning experience this school year.

We are glad to hear the City of Bay St. Louis is going to place a fencing screen around the city yard.

For years residents in the immediate area and others have complained about the appearance of the facility.

It is probably impossible to keep a city yard neat in appearance because of the nature of its contents.

A wooden screen around the facility should do wonders for the neighborhood.

Construction appears to be well on the way for the Hancock County Medical Center.

The clearing of the grounds by county crews gives a better view of the facility from US-90.

It is our understanding construction is on schedule, so we will be looking forward to the opening of the facility in the near future.

In addition, the Hancock County Criminal Facility is also well underway.

The next time you motor down Court Street, you may want to stop a few minutes and view the progress from the road.

The new jail sure will be a tremendous improvement over the 50-plus-year-old facility now being used.

POPULAR FISHING SPOT—Several fishermen were trying their luck Saturday morning from the Uman Avenue Fishing pier in Bay St. Louis. The pier is a very busy place with someone fishing or crabbing just about any hour of the day. We talked to several 'mullet chasers' who said it was too warm now for the popeyes, as they haven't caught any for several weeks. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

IN CONGRESS

By Cong. Trent Lott

A POSITIVE DIRECTION FOR THE SUPREME COURT

Many years ago in one of my special conversations late in the evening with my predecessor, the late Congressman William Colmer, he talked about the influence of a President of the United States.

Appointing justices to the Supreme Court, he said, was one of the most important things a President can do to shape in years to come the direction of the country and the judiciary. Our discussion occurred against the backdrop of the Warren court years. Mr. Colmer worried about the destructive decisions of that court which were putting criminals back on the streets and disarming our law enforcement officers.

I saw firsthand an example of a President's influence on the court in 1969 when President Nixon appointed Warren Burger to the bench and signaled a shift away from the Warren court's liberal position. Mr. Burger had been an outspoken critic, particularly of the Warren court rulings on criminal law.

Unfortunately the 17 years of the Burger court were not as counter-revolutionary as we hoped, but there were gains. The court became more friendly to the views of law enforcement officials. Chief Justice Burger played a key role in scaling back the Warren court's landmark Miranda ruling which requires police to read suspected criminals their rights before questioning.

Mr. Burger consistently gained majority decisions to grant greater power to the police to conduct search and seizures of evidence and to place limits on the unending appeals from prisoners on death row. He managed to limit the reach of many Warren court decisions, including those to exclude illegally obtained evidence from criminal trials.

With the resignation of Chief Justice Burger and the appointment by President Reagan of Justice William Rehnquist to succeed him, it is very likely that the court will be nudged a bit further toward positive, conservative decisions.

Justice Rehnquist will be an excellent Chief Justice. He is an activist conservative and will have a positive influence on the Supreme Court from the view of Mississippians.

In recent years, his role as the court's conservative conscience has taken on a new importance with the President's appointment of Justice Sandra Day O'Connor and a more conservative voting pattern by the court's two moderate justices — Byron White and Lewis F. Powell, Jr.

Two years ago, Mr. Rehnquist wrote the court's 5 to 4 decision weakening the 1966 Miranda ruling by permitting a public safety exception to the rule. In the court's 1984 term, Mr. Rehnquist was in the majority in 17 of 28 cases decided by a vote of 5 to 4.

While we may not see an abrupt ideological shift in the Supreme Court as a result of these changes, there is no doubt that they will have a major impact eventually. The Supreme Court is becoming more conservative, and that is good for the country and good for Mississippi.

MISSISSIPPI RANKS HIGH IN QUARTERLY INCOME GAINS

The U. S. Commerce Department this week issued a report that showed that Mississippi is making gains in personal income earnings. During the first three months of this year, Mississippi was in the top five categories of income gains for our workers.

Mississippi workers experienced an income gain of 2 percent during these months, compared to a national average of 1.1 percent. The Commerce Department said many states experienced drops in their income because of problems in the farm and energy economy.

Despite Mississippi's heavy reliance on these two industries, we still make major gains in income, indicating that we would have been very near the top if we hadn't had problems in these two areas.

When you couple the fact that Mississippi is one of the top income gainers in the nation with our ranking as the eighth highest state in creating new jobs during 1985, it becomes apparent that our economy is doing well in our state.

Granted, some areas are still suffering high unemployment and layoffs. But our programs of expansion of existing industry and maximizing state and federal dollars for economic development have led to the creation of 59,000 new jobs since our administration began.

The Commerce Department report showed that West Virginia had the highest income gain with 3.5 percent; followed by Virginia, New Hampshire, and Maine, with 2.4 percent gain; South Carolina, Montana, with 2.2 percent; Mississippi, Vermont, Rhode Island and Nevada, with 2 percent.

The new jobs ranking of eighth came from the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. During 1985, Mississippi had the eighth highest number of new jobs created.

In short, we are on the move and we must continue the work we have begun. Our office has recommended, and the Legislature has approved, a number of little-publicized economic development programs in the past three sessions.

These programs are aimed at helping small businesses, existing businesses, and investing in the future of our state through technology-related businesses. These programs, administered by the state Department of Economic Development, are creating new jobs daily.

The 59,000 new jobs created last year are the proof of the work done through these programs and the Department.

The longer I serve in the Governor's Office the more encouraged I become about the willingness of people to assist each other. One such case occurred last week involving a 10-year-old leukemia victim from Magee.

Keisha Pruitt is a bright-eyed, spunky elementary school student. She found out last March that she had leukemia and has since been found to have three different forms of the disease. Since the discovery of her disease, she has been treated by seven doctors in Jackson but the disease has refused to go into remission.

Right now she is in Seattle, Washington, for a crucial bone marrow transplant operation at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Institute.

The bone marrow for Keisha is being donated by her seven-year-old brother, Drew. When asked why he was submitting to an operation in a state thousands of miles from home, Drew responded, "I just wanted to do something to help my sister."

Keisha, Drew and their parents, Vincent and Faye, have been the beneficiaries of a lot of people who just wanted to help Drew's sister. In Magee and Simpson County, local churches and residents have donated to a fund for Keisha at the Trustmark National Bank. The financial assistance for the family is very important because they will have to set up temporary housekeeping in Seattle for several months during Keisha's operation and recovery period.

A lot of Mississippians have been involved in trying to help the family already. The Mississippi Highway Patrol, of which Vincent is a member, has donated money and blood for Keisha's treatment.

Bay St. Louis

On Saturday, August 2, 1986, our daughter, Lulie, was sailing with John, Debby and Sara Mason and Debby's father, Bob Lucas, when a violent thunderstorm came up; and they got caught in it and were unable to make landfall.

We would like to commend the Waveland Police Department, the Coast Guard, the Bureau of Marine Resources, the crew of the MV Wahoo out of Mobile (where they finally were able to land the boat), and all the individuals too numerous to mention here for their concern and help on that very long afternoon.

We are also grateful to John, Debby and Bob for bringing our child home safely.

Sincerely,
Betsy and Noel Phillips

Mosquito migrations mandate effective control programs

A tiny invader from Asia poses a potentially major public health threat to Mississippi, other southern states, and possibly even the Great Lakes area.

The Asian tiger mosquito, Aedes albopictus, probably came to this country through the international used tire industry. Public health and mosquito control officials have confirmed its movement from the West Coast to Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Alabama and Florida.

Aedes albopictus carries and can transmit dengue fever and encephalitis. The insect is a temperate, cold-tolerant mosquito and an aggressive biter which feeds on a wide array of animals, including humans and birds.

"This mosquito will actively seek a source for a blood meal," said David L. Sykes, director of the Gulf Coast Mosquito Control Commission.

"When in the vicinity of its breeding area, you really don't have to look for this mosquito; it'll find you! Asian tiger mosquitoes seem to prefer human blood but will seek other sources, too—birds, for example."

This typical "backyard" mosquito breeds in artificial containers and in tree holes.

Ed Bowles, State Department of Health entomologist, surveyed for the Asian tiger mosquito in Jackson in cooperation with researchers from the Centers for Disease Control and the University of Notre Dame.

They failed to find infestations but did discover that used tires are being trucked into the Byram landfill from New Orleans, where the mosquito is well established.

Bowles said the vector's presence and movement in the United States seems to be tied to the international used tire industry.

"Used truck casings are purchased primarily from Japan and Taiwan to be retreaded in the U.S.," Bowles explained.

"The first breeding population of Aedes albopictus, discovered in Gulfport by David Sykes, was in three tire yards along Highway 49.

One of the Coast companies had bought used tires from a Texas dealer—tires that apparently contained the mosquito's eggs or larvae—and then shipped those tires to companies in Petal and in Vicksburg, thereby establishing the mosquito in those cities, too.

"This mosquito appears to be a prolific breeder," Bowles said. "David Sykes reported landing rate counts of 500 per minute in Petal, much higher than is usually seen in heavy populations of the more familiar Aedes aegypti."

The Aedes aegypti mosquito, common to Mississippi and other tropical climate areas, breeds near houses and can transmit urban yellow fever, dengue, and encephalitis.

"In New Orleans and Gulfport, where we have found heavy larval populations of the Asian tiger mosquito, almost no larval Aedes aegypti occur, indicating that the Asian mosquito may be able to competitively exclude the Aedes aegypti from breeding areas."

"We know what to expect from and how to control the Aedes aegypti," Bowles said, "but we don't know much about this Asian vector. We can't pinpoint, treat, or control its usually shaded breeding areas; individual homeowners and business operators can find and control the artificial containers as a breeding ground, but we can't deal with all the tree holes in the forest."

"One advantage is that Asian tiger mosquitoes are weak fliers," the entomologist said. "They usually hover and feed locally, near their breeding areas; so tree holes in forested areas as a breeding area may not be an immediate problem to many urban residents."

Both Bowles and Sykes called on individuals and communities to help control the growth and spread of the Aedes albopictus through elimination of breeding areas.

"We must clean up discarded tires, junk cars, and other water-holding containers," Sykes said.

"A potential health hazard will exist until each homeowner and business operator empties all water-holding containers. Elimination of breeding containers is an extremely important method for control."

"The occurrence of death and disease in Florida and Alabama thought to be related to the Aedes albopictus is a serious health threat to us in Mississippi," he added.

"Having an efficient, well-funded mosquito control program is certainly going to be very important to our well-being for the next several years."

Convention center plans announced

University of Southern Mississippi officials reported an agreement is being finalized for university involvement in a $9 million Sheraton Hotel convention center to be built in Hattiesburg.

The facility will house USM Division of Lifelong Learning educational opportunities and also will benefit area business, government and industry with accommodations for meetings of up to 400 people. The layout will allow for several smaller groups to meet at the same time.

Construction of the planned convention center should begin by July 1, with an expected January 1 completion date.

A Mobile company representing Sheraton interests, MHP, Inc. will construct the facility at the intersection of U.S. 49 and Interstate 59. USM will not be required to make any capital outlay of dollars, but will have primary responsibility for the administration and development of programming.

Dr. Gene Tinnon, dean of the USM Division of Lifelong Learning, said the facility's potential is tremendous in terms of economic impact, the sophisticated level of academic programming and service to professional associations. More than 30,000 people are served each year through Lifelong Learning programs in Hattiesburg alone.

"We have estimated that, during the first year of operation, more than 18,000 people will be served through the convention center," Tinnon noted, adding that the programs will be self-supporting.

"This is a demonstration of the faith people outside the city of Hattiesburg have in our future," said former Hattiesburg mayor Bobby Chain. Chain, representing MHP, Inc. said center participants also will have the use of the USM Equestrian Center, the USM golf course and the Methodist Hospital Wellness Center.

USM Vice President for Research and Extended Services Dr. Karen Yarbrough, who chaired a selection committee including Dick Munton of the Hattiesburg Area Chamber of Commerce and Tinnon, said the process of the selection was made only after the careful examination of more than 50 factors of each potential investor.

Yarbrough said three proposals were received, including the Sheraton proposal, one from the Holiday Inn involving new construction, and another from Ramada Inn supporting renovations on an existing Hattiesburg facility.

"We looked at the impact of each upon the community, the university and the Division of Lifelong Learning," she said, noting that expenditures, potential initial and long-term employment and other factors were considered in making the choice to proceed with the Sheraton proposal, which required no initial investment by the university.

Chain said, "This is the largest project ever announced in the city of Hattiesburg, except for those concerning our two hospitals. We look forward to continued growth and success."

Also present during the announcement were USM President Dr. Aubrey K. Lucas; Hattiesburg mayor G. D. Williamson; Hattiesburg Area Chamber of Commerce President John McGregor; USM Foundation President Bob Mixon and Jack Pittman, land owners; Lynn Carlidge of the Forrest County Board of Supervisors; Don Nace, who helped identify potential investors; City Engineer Herlon Pierce, who assisted with the utility preparation and Moran Pope, attorney for the city of Hattiesburg.

Specialty Foods South Inc.

New association to promote specialty foods

By Karen L. Moore
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

The efforts of many of the state's small specialty food businesses go largely unnoticed. But some of these business owners have banded together to change that.

Specialty Foods South Inc. held its incorporation meeting in Jackson recently to begin its effort to promote Mississippi specialty food products. The group approved its bylaws, elected officers and discussed ways to increase their visibility among the buying public.

The association's beginnings came out of an effort from the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"Mississippi has quality specialty products," said Dr. Virgil Culver, a marketing and distribution specialist with the MCE's Food and Fiber Center.

"However many small businesses simply do not individually have the knowledge and resources to get their products widely known."

Some of the Mississippi products represented at the meeting include candy, muscadine wine, French-hybrid wine, pecans, quail, smoked sausage, Mexican spice blends, dry mixes, sauce products and salad dressing. Association members hope Mississippians and other Mississippians will want to buy their products and keep Mississippi dollars in Mississippi.

Andy and Karen Pinkston of Lusco's Restaurant in Greenwood joined the association to help promote their Lusco's line of salad dressing, fish sauce and shrimp sauce.

"We found even in our own area, Mississippi products are not well known," Mrs. Pinkston said. "We joined not only to promote our own products but other native products too."

The Pinkstons sold their products from their restaurant for a year before putting them on the market May 3. Mrs. Pinkston said sales have been good so far.

"We've had some reorders and have added customers such as grocery suppliers," she said.

"We've also had orders from gourmet specialty shops in-state, as well as shops in Fort Walton and Miami, Fla.; Hilton Head, S.C.; Try, Mich.; and New York City."

Suzie Foote of Great Flower Tortilla Co. in Jackson joined the association to lower her costs through joint printing and promotions and sharing travel costs to trade shows.

Her business is in its third year producing seasonings for Mexican dishes. Her product is distributed in 37 states.

"Making good Tex-Mex food is difficult," Mrs. Foote said. "I want the average cook to be able to make good Tex-Mex food at home without being in the kitchen all day."

Her seasonings for tacos, chili, enchiladas, guacamole, gazpacho and salsa picante have no sugar, salt, preservatives, chemicals or monosodium glutamate. Many similar seasonings found in grocery stores have some or all of these ingredients.

Sam Rushing, along with his wife Diane, of the Winery Rushing in Merigold joined the association to expand their marketing area.

"I am a seventh generation Mississippi farmer and traditionally we have been kept away from marketing our products," Mr. Rushing said.

The Rushings have produced muscadine wine since 1977 and recently began marketing Mrs. Rushing's wine muffin mix.

Ed and Edna Joy Prisock of Louisville are in their third year of marketing muscadine hot pepper jelly, blueberry preserves and syrup, almond-strawberry preserves and syrup and pecan topping. They are the first blueberry growers to process their products on a fully automated basis.

We wanted to join the association to work together on problems such as marketing, insurance, advertising and attending trade shows together," Mr. Prisock said.

GARLIC

Five thousand years ago, 15 pounds of garlic (Allium sativum) would buy a slave in Egypt, and it is said that slaves there went on strike when garlic was withheld from their diet. Greeks thought the plant destroyed magic spells, so Ulysses used it to rescue his men from Circe after she turned them into swine. Tough Roman legions considered caraway bread and garlic their "survival foods." The herb was important, too, in Chinese and Hebrew cultures.

These ancients were wise in their esteem of this still-popular plant, which has been called "a ruffian with a heart of gold." The essential oil that gives this ruffian its pungent odor and healing power is sulphide of allyl. Garlic is also rich in iodine and contains antiseptic and mosquito-repellent properties. During World War I, open wounds were treated with sterilized pads of sphagnum moss soaked in diluted garlic juice, and herbalists have long used it as a diuretic and to produce perspiration. It has also been tried with some success as a treatment for everything from asthma, high blood pressure, and stomach ulcers to typhoid, enteritis, and cholera. When you're coming down with a cold, a peeled garlic clove, cut in half and inserted in each cheek, is said to act as a preventative. (Just remember that boiling destroys the herb's medicinal properties.)

Garlic (from the Anglo-Saxon gar, meaning "spear," and teac, meaning "leek") can be planted in the fall or early spring in a sunny, sheltered spot in well-drained, sandy, but fertile soil. Sow cloves about two inches deep and six inches apart and keep well weeded. You might want to use this member of the onion family as a companion plant for raspberries and roses to deter Japanese beetles and improve growth and health. It's also believed that roses in competition with nearby garlic will produce a stronger fragrance.

Flowers with flamboyant, white heads (with a touch of purple) will bloom in June. These should be removed in the bud stage. In spring, fertilize fall-planted bulbs with a nitrogenous fertilizer, and dress all garlic plants with sulphate of potash in midsummer. Staking the spiky, grayish green plants will protect them from wind damage. In five or six months, when the leaves begin to drop and turn yellow, dig up the underground bulbs, dry them for a brief time in the sun, cut off or braid the leaves, then clean and hang the bulbs in a cool, dark, dry place.

A favorite use for garlic—aside from flavoring stews, soups, salads, and vegetables—is to insert cloves into meats such as lamb and pork to improve taste and tenderness. Also, garlic butter, which calls for four macerated cloves per quarter pound of butter, will enhance the taste of any bread.

A simple, safe, and effective garden spray can be made by processing a number of garlic cloves in a blender with water and straining the liquid through several layers of cheesecloth. Sprayed on your garden, the mixture will keep numerous pests at bay. The odor of garlic is famous, too, for discouraging vampires... and lovers! Fortunately, chewing a few sprigs of parsley after consuming this herb should overcome the latter problem.

Consumer Update

By Jimmy Bonner
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Crop pests in some parts of Mississippi may not always get their way now that a system to give farmers a jump on the problem is available.

The system is a radio network operated by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service that ties county agents and pest management specialists together in nine north-central Mississippi counties.

That connection is used to help farmers get a jump on crop problems such as insects, diseases and other problems that can mean the difference in good yields and crop failure.

The radio network, which uses FM band radios operating on a private channel, began in 1981 in Pontotoc and Marshall counties. The network has since been expanded to Panola, Yalobusha, Grenada, Tate, Tallahatchie, Quitman and Union counties.

Each Tuesday morning county agents and pest management specialists in the area get together via radio to discuss current and potential problems in crops. The information is relayed to farmers as needed. Dr. Mike Williams, Extension area pest management specialist, moderates the discussion.

"The network helps us pinpoint areas of concern, such as insects, diseases or weed problems," Williams said. "Some of these problems can slip up fast."

Williams is a member of an Extension pest management team that covers a 19-county area in north-central Mississippi. Plant Pathologist Frank Killebrew and Agronomist Dr. Nathan McKinney are other members of the team.

While group discussions are held weekly, up-to-the-minute contacts are made when the need arises. The network also is used in the off-season as well as in the production season to pinpoint a variety of potential problems.

The network has come in handy this summer in detecting early insect activity in grain sorghum and cotton crops. The insect problems may have occurred earlier than usual this year because crops were planted early and last year's mild winter permitted more insects to overwinter.

The idea to use radios as another management tool surfaced when the Optimum Pest Management program ended in 1980. Radio equipment used in that project was installed in vehicles and became the starting point for the network.

Additional radio equipment has been made available through county Extension offices, county agents, and other agencies and farmers who see the benefits of keeping abreast of potential crop problems.

A key advantage for county agents who work directly with farmers is getting quick information about problems that can develop rapidly in crops if not detected early.

"I can talk from the field with an entomologist and from his description give a farmer a pretty good indication of what the problem is," said County Agent Doyle Varner, who works in Yalobusha and Tallahatchie counties. "It's sure a lot quicker than me driving back and forth."

Varner said the network also comes in handy in identifying unusual insects or other problems with which farmers are sometimes confronted.

Access to the equipment also has helped county agents like Varner who must work larger areas because of budget cuts to save on telephone and travel expenses.

On a larger scale, the ability to converse on a moment's notice allows crop specialists to anticipate problems before they become widespread.

"If we find a problem in a particular area, I can tell agents in neighboring counties to be on the lookout," Williams said. "It gives us an extra day or two that can be critical in keeping the problem from spreading."

Williams sees the radio network as another effort to help farmers faced with recurring problems produce their crops.

"We're using the network to fill in the gaps where the service is needed," he said.

The network covers an area of about 60 miles, but Williams said more area and farmers could be served if more equipment were available.

"We've had to scrounge in some instances and some of the agents have even bought their own equipment," he said. "If we had equipment in every county, it could save a lot of steps."

Varner said a radio tower in Tallahatchie County in the Delta also would greatly increase the range of the current system in an area ripe for expansion.

"This would open a new area because a lot of farmers in the Delta already have a radio system," he said.

Oge' speaks against student ability grouping

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Bay Schools Superintendent Roger Oge advocated the elimination of the ability grouping system Thursday at the Parents for Quality Education meeting.

"This insidious policy of grouping students according to reading levels is a hierarchy that is set up from the first grade," Oge said.

Students are as we see them and some who are placed in the "low" class begin to feel "low," he added. "This is just not the way to deal with children," Oge said.

Oge said this one of the problems in the school district he would try to change.

He also talked about the high drop out rate of students, not only in the local district but in schools throughout the country.

"For every 2,000 students that begin school, 700 will not finish 12 years," Oge said.

He said one method he will use in trying to combat this problem is more parent-teacher conferences.

"We will do everything possible to get parents to come and talk with the teachers," Oge said.

Oge encouraged the parents to get more involved and said he would be calling on them following an extensive review of the Education Reform Act to serve on committees designed to deal with particular problems in the school district.

Bay woman faces gaming device charge

Jean Harmon, 41, of 513 Genin St., Bay St. Louis was arrested Tuesday, Aug. 5 following the seizure of 14 slot machines from a unit at the Kergosien Mini Storage on Ulman Avenue.

Bay St. Louis Police Chief Ray Murphy said an anonymous tip led them to the warehouse where the slot machines were stored.

Harmon was charged with possession of gaming devices. She was released from Hancock County Jail on a $500 bond.

According to Murphy, Jean Raddy is the name on the lease for the storage area but this is believed to be a fake name.

What affects the value of a house?

By William B. Rayburn,
DBA

Assistant Professor of Finance, Insurance and Real Estate, University of Southern Mississippi

HATTIESBURG—What causes one house to be worth $70,000 in one neighborhood and the same house to be worth $10,000 more in a different neighborhood?

Many consumers think that the difference is due entirely to the neighborhood, or can't understand it at all. Many other consumers think that three factors influence value: location, location, and location.

While location is very important, there are several other factors which contribute to value. These factors influence value from Anchorage, Alaska, to Miami, Florida, including Hattiesburg, Mississippi. They may not influence them in the same manner, but these factors are all at work in every real estate market.

Specifically, there are four factors which act on and influence value—economic factors, political factors, social factors and physical factors.

Economic factors that influence value are those forces that contribute to man's desire for certain items and the existing quantity of those items. Some examples of economic factors that influence value are employment levels, income levels, and the demand and supply of available financing.

Several consumers may want a certain house. However, the more prospective purchasers in the community that can afford the house, all other factors being equal, the higher the value. Purchasers being ready, willing, and able to purchase will, in effect, drive up property values unless the supply of housing keeps up. Boston, Mass. is a recent example of this happening as housing prices have risen about 19 percent over the last year.

Political factors also influence value. Some examples of political influences which affect value are zoning laws, building codes, and taxation.

Zoning laws are designed to promote conformity in land use. This will in turn support value. Would you want your house next to a hazardous chemical waste site? Imagine one being constructed next to your house! What would happen to the value of your home?

Social factors also influence value. Shifts in population, population growth, attitudes toward design and style, and changes in families and family patterns are examples of social factors which serve to influence value.

Recently, there has been a trend toward sunbelt states as well as a trend toward living on a shoreline. These social trends serve to influence value, especially in these areas. In addition, certain styles or designs will be in vogue in certain areas. When this occurs, buyers are usually willing to pay more just to have that style or design.

Physical factors may also influence value. Climate, transportation, schools, and topography of the land are a few examples of physical factors. Buyers are usually willing to pay a premium for close access to transportation arteries which present a minimum of travel time. Have you ever wondered why many subdivisions are located just off the interstate outside of major cities?

These factors interact with each other to produce and sustain value. If one of these factors gets out of balance, value will suffer. For example, if unemployment rises, less people have the ability to pay. There are fewer potential buyers in the marketplace and consequently, value suffers.

in Mississippi Gardens

Broad Color Range Abounds In Marigolds

By Jim Perry
Landscape Specialist
Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service

Marigolds are the sunny messengers of good cheer in the summer garden. Now the favorite summer flower, it's a small wonder because this versatile plant is highly resistant to pollution and strong and tolerant of a wide range of soil and weather conditions. And few flowers provide so many blossoms through summer and fall.

Not originally. These wonders of the modern garden were insignificant little weeds from the New World, but it was really modern hybridizers who caused the marigold to blossom into such an array of good garden plants.

Don't be misled by the name African marigolds. They started with an American species, Tagetes erecta, and in early development were generally large flowered, free blooming plants of some size. Modern-day breeders have substantially reduced plant size while still retaining the large flowers.

Now there are many large-flowered hybrids with a compact growth habit. Many of these also bloom earlier than their taller counterparts. And many of the taller African marigold varieties have flowers with long stems that make good cut flowers.

French marigolds were also American, springing originally from the species, Tagetes patula. These mighty midgets are generally early blooming, fairly uniform in plant size with many blooms. Many hybrids have been created by crossing plants within this species.

Still a third major kind of marigold has been developed in recent years, hybrids known as triploids. The triploids have been developed by crossing African marigolds with French marigolds. The results in these "mules" (somewhat like crossing a horse with a donkey) are flowers up to 50 percent larger than those of French marigolds and a very early blooming habit but with a strong free-flowering ability all summer long.

The taller varieties of African marigolds are always spring planted because it takes longer for them to reach their peak performance. But the compact Africans, the French marigolds and triploid hybrids can be planted as late as midsummer to still provide a good season of garden color. Marigolds can still be seeded directly in the soil outdoors for fall bloom.

Since marigolds are one of the most popular plants for summer color, they're also widely available in nurseries and garden centers.

Marigolds are good container plants, producing faithfully and lavishly. They also flourish and bloom indoors if they get bright light. A major benefit from the breeders' expertise is a broad color range starting with green through cream white into buttercup, lemon, canary and golden yellows.

The tones deepen to orange, tangerine and gold, then orange through deep bronze reds. It's difficult to duplicate the color spread of marigolds with any other flower in the sunny colors, whether a deep sunset red or the blazing hot yellow of midday.

Another type, derived from Tagetes tenuifolia, forms low-spreading mats of color with thumbnail-sized blossoms. They'll form carpets of two feet or more. And a variety derived from another species, T. signata, is Tangerine Gem, with lacy foliage and an abundance of small orange, single flowers.

Clubs, Auxiliaries

American Legion Auxiliary Unit No. 139

By Dr. Esther Oschmann,
Publicity Chairman

Mrs. Mattie North is newly elected President of the American Legion Auxiliary to Post No. 139 of Bay St. Louis.

She is busy selecting her chairmen for the year and working on the programs for the auxiliary.

For nearly every man in World War I who endured the dangers and hardships of camp, ship and battle-front, there was a woman serving at home to help make possible America's victory - his wife, mother, sister or daughter.

After the war had been won and the men of the armed forces had banded together in the American Legion to carry forward their services to country in peace time, it was only natural that the women of their families should desire to continue to serve with them.

The result was formation of the American Legion Auxiliary, the largest and most influential woman's organization of its kind in the world today.

The Auxiliary has been growing by leaps and bounds every year. One of the major activities of the American Legion Auxiliary is the great task of caring for the disabled Veterans of World War I and II, the Korean War and Vietnam War who are hospitalized, and assisting thousands of other veterans to regain a place in civil life.

Women, who themselves have experienced the suffering of war, can offer that warmth of understanding which no other agency can fulfill.

Over a million dollars are expended each year by the American Legion Auxiliary in hospitalization and welfare work for the benefit of the disabled, as well as in inestimable amount of personal attention.

Our personal contact program seeks to bring happiness and contentment to the Veteran and to his family, especially during his period of hospitalization.

The Auxiliary assists the families of Veterans who are in hospitals or unable to work. It aids disabled men in finding employment.

Early in its organization life, the American Legion Auxiliary saw clearly that the security of America's peace depended upon the nation's ability to defend itself against attack.

Continuous and effective educational work has been done among the women of America to win their understanding and support for essential defensive measures.

One of the Auxiliary's important services to the nation has been achieved in its work for National Security.

No organization of women is more desirous of peace than the American Legion Auxiliary. Having had members of their families in war service and having close personal contacts with the tragic results of war through their rehabilitation and child welfare work, the women of the Auxiliary know well what war means.

The Auxiliary believes that the principles and ideals upon which the American Republic was founded, and for which American blood has been shed, are still the cornerstone of our democracy, and as such should be safeguarded for the welfare of our future generation.

The organization is endeavoring to bring to the citizens of America a fuller realization of their responsibilities of citizenship in order that the American ideal of democratic government may not fail before the multiplicity of problems which confront it, in the rapid expansion of our population and the world problems in which America must be the guiding force.

Mrs. Mattie North, President of American Legion Auxiliary No. 139 of Bay St. Louis asks every eligible woman and Juniors should join the Auxiliary and join in the activities of all our programs.

Mrs. Hazel Wohlschlegel, hospital and rehabilitation chairman, plans parties and picnics for the Veterans at the Gulfport VA hospital and needs the support of all auxiliary members and all new members.

Attend the meeting on 2nd Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at the Legion home on Blue Meadow Rd. in Bay St. Louis. We welcome all of you.

Come, Take a Closer Look

We've heard it called "The Jungle,"
We've heard it called "The Zoo,"
Those places are for beasties,
Wild apes and kangaroos.
I'd driven 'round there slowly,
To see with my own eyes,
Such a place within our midst,
And never advertised!
I went by day, went by night,
But I had yet to see,
Anything but children there—
It looked like school to me
Wow! I thought, and how unique!
A true test of my skill,
Teaching at a "Children Zoo,"
"Oh yes! I think I will!"
So, come, take a closer look,
And share some of my dreams
For this place called "a zoo,"
Things aren't what they may seem.
Yes, I think I'm ready for
Those "creatures" wild and strange,
And, if they learn like people,
I'll ask the name be changed.
I'm sure we'll think of something
For a name if we try,
That's better than "The Jungle,"
Maybe, Bay Junior High?
It's Open House, so stop in Between seven and nine,
On Tuesday night, August 12,
To see this room of mine!
I hope you'll like what I've planned
To make the "wild ones" tame,
And that you'll help, if you can,
My work to change "That Name."

THOU SHALT NOT COVET

Romans 13:9
Advertising in print, radio and television media tends to feed the covetous mind. Many feel the luxuries of the day is a right by citizenship.

Such realization is impossible because our blessings depend to a very large extent on our individual initiative and preparation.

This comes through diligent learning and experience. Inheritance and being at the right place at the right time has some bearing on the extent of the temporal blessings we enjoy.

Realistically, how much can one enjoy at a time? Recently, the news media carried a story about the wife of the former Philippines' president. She had some 3,000 pairs of shoes. It is evident she over compensated for the poverty she had earlier experienced.

In the Ten Commandments God gave to Moses on Mt. Sinai, God said, "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's house, thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife, nor his man servant, nor his maid servant, nor his ox, nor his donkey, nor anything that is thy neighbor's." (Exodus 20:17)

The whole world has the same trouble. A story is told of Abraham Lincoln, the great president. A Springfield neighbor was drawn to his door one day by the crying of children. When he got there, he saw Lincoln passing by with his two sons crying lustily.

"What is the matter with the boys?" asked the man. "Just what is the matter with the whole world!" answered Lincoln. "I have three walnuts and each boy wants two."

Surely this spirit is abroad still to day. We all need to learn more earnestly that covetousness and greed are sins that bring only trouble and pain.

Paul stated, "Put to death therefore your members which are upon the earth: fornication, uncleanness, passion, evil desire and covetousness which is idolatry." (Col. 3:5)

Covetousness is longing for something not one's own to the point it becomes an all consuming desire. It becomes an idol. It pushes God off the throne as far as the heart is concerned. Covetousness is another act which will prevent one from enjoying the eternal joys of heaven. (I Corinthians 6:9-10)

C. Leslie Miller wrote about a man who left it all: "A famous millionaire died of cancer. For weeks he suffered intolerable agony. Although surrounded by every luxury and receiving every possible care, he died as wretchedly as a pauper.

There was the usual publicity, flowers, telegrams an expensive casket and towering beautifully carved tombstone. After the funeral a relative turned to another and said, "How much do you suppose Harry left?" Back came the reply: "He left everything he had." Yes, Harry could not take one thing with him. He worked harder than a slave would. He grasped, saved, cheated, lied and where legally possible, he stole as he amassed his great fortune.

He lived for self. He left all he had. He faced God without hope or plea. Harry was a poor fool. "What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" (Matthew 16:26)

Covetousness is a prevalent sin. It seems to involve people who in most respects are highly moral. However their desire to have more, bigger and better causes the interests of others to be trodden under foot.

May we do as our text says, "...thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." (Romans 13:9) fection. Symptoms include fever, chills, headache, muscle pain, tiredness, mild sore throat, and inflammation of the nasal passages; cough is often severe and long-lasting. Most patients recover on their own in about seven days.

GNB savings account features tiered rate

Gulf National Bank has inaugurated a Super Passbook Savings Account on the Gulf Coast.

Super Passbook features a tiered rate of interest which increases from the basic passbook rate to a maximum money market rate, depending on the account balance.

Gulf National Bank is currently paying the following interest rates on their Super Passbook Savings Account:

4% percent, up to $500; 5% percent, $500 - $2500; and 6% percent, $2500 +.

Super Passbook depositors get full access to funds with an unlimited number of withdrawals, a passbook as a permanent record, a detailed quarterly statement and FDIC insurance coverage.

Another feature of this account is Teletransfer, a new service offered by Gulf National Bank. Teletransfer provides a depositor the means to transfer funds from a Super Passbook account to another preselected GNB account over the telephone.

Gulf National Bank is offering the Super Passbook Savings Account to give customers with large deposits in their passbook savings account a competitive rate of interest.

Those customers with smaller deposit balances are given a savings incentive to add to this account and gain a higher rate of interest.

In addition to individual depositors, Super Passbook Savings Account are available for non-profit organizations, proprietorships, partnerships, corporations, municipalities and state governments.

High risk groups need flu shots

While most Mississippians are panting through the last weeks of a sweltering summer, state public health workers are already preparing for the possibility of another severe influenza season.

Beginning Sept. 1, county health departments will offer influenza immunizations to provide protection against the current prevalent strains of flu: A/Mississippi/1/85, A/Chile/1/83, and B/Ann Arbor/1/86.

Recipients will again pay $4 per shot to help cover cost of the vaccine and its administration.

The Hancock County Health Department will be among those offering flu shots.

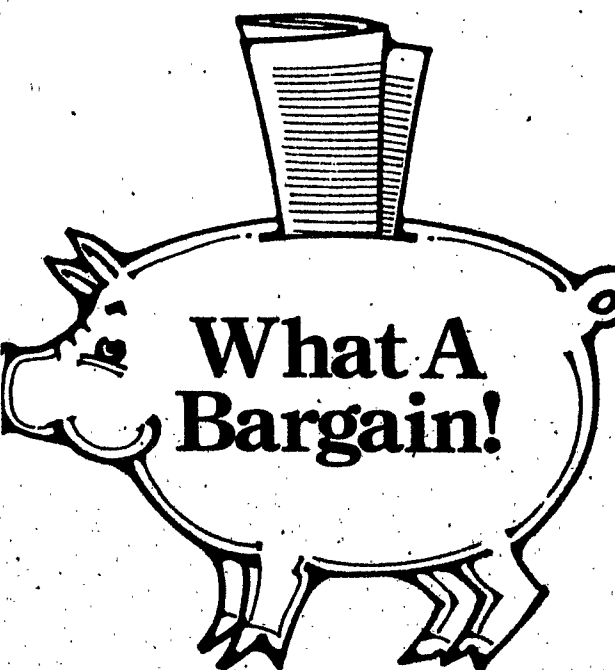

The flu shot is available to all Mississippians, but State Health Officer Alton B. Cobb, M.D., M.P.H., emphasizes the need for those at high risk to be immunized.

"Immunization has proved to be the most effective way of protecting those people at greatest risk: those who are 65 or older and people of any age with a chronic illness such as diabetes, severe anemia, or heart, lung, or kidney disease," he said. "We encourage such people to visit their physician or the local health department for their flu shot."

"Last year was an unusually bad year for influenza," Dr. Cobb added. In the 1985 season, Mississippi physicians reported 1663 cases of flu—more than three times the number of cases recorded during 1984."

Death certificates listed influenza as cause of death for 46 elderly Mississippians last year; the disease killed 16 state residents in 1984.

Influenza is an acute disease of the respiratory tract spread by person-to-person contact through droplet in-
